THE JUBILER SINGERS.—These justly celebrated colored singers will give two of their interesting concerts at the English Luteran Church on Sixteenth street, Mon Interan Church on Sixteenth street, Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week —one-third of the gross proceeds being given to the church and its active Sunday school, to be used in the promotion of their missionary work. The object is a good one, but the merits of the singers in and of themselves will be auflicient to fill the house. Our correspondents and exchanges 'from the surrounding towns where they are now singing are enthusiastic in praise of their remarkable vocal powers, and their great originality. Private letters also from ministers of the gospel speak of the purity of their hymns and the pathos and lerver of their remarkable.

Dr. O'Leary's Case.—The hearing of the argument in the case of Dr. O'Leary, who was fined for delivering a temperance lecture last Sunday, and in behalf of whom a motion to reopen is pending, was to have been heard to-day before the full bench of the Clay District Justiciary, but Justice Miller was detained by sickness in his family and Associate Justice Philips declined to sit in judgment on the case in the absence of the Chief Justice, but postponed the hearing. This made the counsel for the defence mad all over, and assertions that the court was playing "freeze out" with the Doctor, and was likely to get away with the medical gentleman by having better staying powers, were frequent.

A reporter for this paper interviewed Counsellor O'Pendleton, who is acting as amicus curis on the subject, but the Counsellor Cidently regarded the newspaper man as a "campire" who was endeavoring to "feed and fatten on the ruins of a dying Republic," and declined to shed any information on the state of the game.

Counsellor Cracraft was less relicent, and said it was the grossest outrage that had come under his notice in the whole information on the state of the game.

Counsellor Cracraft was less reticent, and said it was the grossest outrage that had come under his notice in the whole course of his legal practice. "The idea," he said, " of trying a man for a misdemeanor when the defendant himself was not present and did not appear by counsel, would be ridiculous, if it was not notice, the bill of Rights, the Constitution of the United States and West Virginia, to say nothing of the by laws and statutes made in pursuance (hereof, guaranteed to every citizen the right to be confronted with his acquisers, the privilege of summoning his witnesses and the opportunity, if he desired it, of being tried by a jury of his peers. "O'Leary," said the adyocate, warming with his theme, "had none of these privilegas. He was summoned to answer an alleged offence for which he could only be properly tried on a warrant based on proper affidayit and executed by the arrest of the defendant. In that case he would have been brought before the magistrate, been entitled to reasonable time to prepare his defense and had an opportunity of availing himself of all rights to which he was entitled. Instead of this he was never brought into court, a snap judgment was taken on him and the first he know an attachment with in wating than the whole case amoning to."

In conclusion the counsellor announced his intention of going to the bottom facts through the medium of the next grand jury. He indicated that he had suffered enough from the performances of Justices Miller and Phillips to make his hair turn prematurely gray, and he proposed to puil down the pilars of their common wealth, if necessary, even if Bill Love, Martin, "Pete" and "Hayes" were buried in the ruins of the wreck.

The reporter hunted round for more information on the subject, but this was shout all he could get last night. Justice Phillips sail he thought the adjournment would be for about a week, which will give time for further information.

Sourns Bulorn, at whose office, No. 1422 Market street, Mr. John Fitzsimon's headquarters are to be found, wishes to be inform the large crowds who daily stop before the office door, that those steel spring Tug Links they so much admire and about which they ask more questions than the Squire has time to answer; are not used for weighing pig metal, as was suggested by that overgrown boy, but are placed on wagon traces to protect the waried and often overworked animals from straining their shoulders when starting a wagon, dray, or cart, heavily loaded, and to relieve horses and harness from violent shocks, when the vehicle jolts into a bad hole if a bad-road. These useful and durable Tug Links can now be seen on nearly all the rolling mill teams, coal hauling teams, the street car horses and wagon teams, owned by all the wholesale grocers, as Mr. Fitzsimons has sold several hundred pair of these useful horse and harness preservers in Wheeling, Benwood, Bellairs and Martin's Ferry.
